Eddy Marshall - Director / writer

Eddy Marshall is a director whose work ranges through series tv, comedy and drama, short films, pop promos, childrens' television, pilots and commercials.

Eddy studied directing at the Northern Film School and his graduation film 'The Ring' won the Best British Production award at the British Short Film Festival in 1997. Both his second short, 'Philip's Flashing Finger' and 'The Ring' have been screened at international festivals and broadcast on television, in the UK and abroad.

In 2001 Eddy directed a third well-received short, 'Jack and Jill's Christmas' and in 2004 he completed a Screen Yorkshire / UK Film Council-funded 'Digital Short', 'The Wreck of the Mary Celeste.'

'The Wreck of the Mary Celeste' won the Sweet Success Award (Best in Festival) at the Sweet HD Festival in Edinburgh in 2004 and was nominated for Best Short at the 2005 Directors' Guild awards. The film was also blown up to 35mm and distributed on the festival circuit by the British Council.

In 2003, Eddy directed an episode of 'Cavegirl' for the BBC and went on to direct multiple episodes of 'Hollyoaks' for Lime Pictures.

Eddy's Hollyoaks work includes the Christmas 2005 episodes and the late night specials 'Hollyoaks: Back From The Dead', which were nominated at the UK Soap Awards. Eddy has recently directed two episodes of Dream Team for Hewland International and four episodes of Grange Hill, including the show's last-ever episode.

Eddy Marshall has undergraduate and postgraduate degrees in media and film and is represented by Janet Fillingham Associates.
